PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CEO Tara Powers Supports the Launch of a Mentoring and Advising Program with DISH Women's Network

Boulder, Colo., October 25, 2018 – Tara Powers, CEO of Powers Resource Center, a Boulder-based employee engagement, talent development and leadership training company, is proud to announce that she was chosen as a speaker with the DISH Women's Network to discuss key strategies for launching a mentorship program. Powers' talk helped to support the launch of the program to members of DISH's Women's Network last month at the DISH corporate office in Englewood, Colo.

The goal of the speaking event was to build awareness about mentoring, create understanding of what's required of both a mentor and a mentee, and instill comfort in both becoming a mentor and asking for a mentor. The launch event also introduced resources for mentors and mentees, and measurement tools for success.

"I was inspired and honored to support DISH in the launch of their mentorship program," said Powers. "There are unique benefits for professional women in both the mentor and mentee relationship and I am confident that the remarkable women of the DISH Women's Network will take full advantage of them."

The DISH Women's Network is an organization within the DISH Corporation dedicated to providing women an environment to foster relationships and professional growth through networking, education and career-development.
